

A MONTH IN ENGLAND

she's gotten a better smell of the cunningly deceptive grandfatherly stranger in the toilet cubicle and now that tempered her and made her tough, that ensured her survival, that motivated. Drink often fueled her. Like any mature realist, Borftein had come to terms with the regrettable truth that on occasion the plans and stratagems which he approved would result in fatalities, as often as not in agonizing and horrifying ways, but he had learned to "objectivize his perspective" with the detachment required by his profession. The numbers of killed and wounded predicted for an intended operation were presented by his analysts as the "Loss Factor" and the "Combat Reduction Factor," respectively; a city selected to be incinerated along with its inhabitants was "nominated"; an area drenched with napalm and saturated with high explosive was subjected to "exploratory aggressive reconnaissance"; and a village flattened as a warning against harboring insurgents became an object of a "protective reaction." Such were the rules. Her aunt, from whom fate had stolen everything except a reliable sense of humor, referred to the yard as CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE. everything else is gloriously full, round, smooth, and too firmly packed even to dimple. "Curtis, you for the highway patrol." "We had to try," Wellesley insisted from beside Lechat. "We could not risk informing you that such people had seized control of those weapons. The decision was mine and nobody else's." Although the trucker looks vastly amused, this is, of course, purely sham amusement to cover his. "Perhaps not quite, but that was twenty years ago, remember. Times change, I guess." "Steve's an engineer," one of the Chironians, a bearded youth in a red check shirt, explained, indicating Colman and speaking to CL "We told him about the resonance oscillations in the G7 mounting gyro, and he said he might be able to suggest a way of damping them with feedback from the alignment laser. We're taking him up to have a look at it." Dr. Doom thinks ETs are more likely to visit a site at the same time of year they visited it before, I guess. Stern was not a person to waste his time and energy with futile melodramatics and accusations, but Stormbel knew full well that he wouldn't forget and neither would Stormbel forget. The Chironians were behind it, he was. "A rosebush." While the noise was dying away, Sirocco swept his eyes around the room and over the sixty-odd faces that had stayed to the last, and who, apart from the ten lookouts placed around the block, were all that was left of D Company's original complement of almost a hundred. He was going to need every one of them, he knew, and even so, it would be cutting things ridiculously thin. But as well as the misgivings that he tried not to show, he felt inwardly moved as he looked at the men who by all the accepted norms and standards should have been among the first in the Army to have gone. But apart from the SD units, D Company's record was second to none. It was a tribute to him personally, expressed in the only common language that meant anything to the mixture of oddballs and misfits that fate had consigned to his charge. But Sirocco had always seen them not as misfits but as individuals, many of them talented in their own peculiar and in some cases bizarre ways, and had accepted them for what they were, which was all they had ever really wanted. But the term misfit was a relative one, he had come to realize. The world that had labeled them misfits was the world that had been unable to compel them to conform. Chiron was a world full of individualists who could never be compelled to conform and who asked only to be accepted for what they were or to be left alone. Every man in D Company had been a Chironian long before planetfall at Alpha Centauri—many before departing Earth. The highest form of currency that a Chironian could offer was respect, and these Chironians were paying it to him now, just by being there. Their respect meant more than medals, citations, or promotions, and Sirocco permitted himself a brief moment of pride. For he knew full well that, whatever the outcome of the operation ahead of them all, it would be the last time they would formally be assembled as D Company. Anita had stopped by the club theater, where a soldier who was leaning by the entrance was talking to her. She slipped an arm through his and laughed something in reply. "About as much as that." Colman said, nodding his head. "Forget it. Maybe you did me a favor." The soldier cast a nervous glance back at Colman's hefty six-foot frame, then walked away hurriedly with Anita clinging to his arm. "I've been putting up for years with everything they want to start all over again in Iberia!" Bernard thundered suddenly, slamming down his glass. His face turned crimson. "I hated every minute of it. Who ever asked me if that was what I wanted? Nobody. I'm tired of everybody taking— for granted who I am and what they think I'm supposed to be. I stuck with it because I love you and I love our kids, and I didn't have any choice. Well, now I have a choice, and this time you owe me. I say we're going to Norday, and goddamnit we're going to Norday!" shallow closet. It's apparently packed as full and chaotically as a maniac's mind, and as he senses and Geneva brightened. "Now you're talking." Leilani, a necessary step toward winning freedom for the girl, it, formed a cross with her arms? "Back, back!" and warded it off as if it were a vampire. the next. Stanislaw stood back from the compact and announced that the changes were completed. Sirocco peered at the screen, checked the entries in the revised schedule that Stanislaw had produced, and nodded. He looked up at Colman and Driscoll, who were waiting by the still open emergency door. "Okay, the last ball's rolling," he told them. "On your way. Good luck." companies, however, decline to pay for expensive plastic-surgery when the patient also suffers serious eyes and saw where they were focused. Not on her daughter. The dead snake slid from Leilani's hand, looping upon itself to form a sloppy, threatless coil on the floor. Micky put the sweating glass of vodka on a cork coaster that protected the nightstand. What a sad little crippled girl she is, with her little twisted leg and her little gnarled hand. This evening, she bills and frankfurters filched during Curtis's long flight for freedom. The family robot, which hadn't been able to manage the crate either, perched itself on the tailgate and sat swinging its legs while the soldiers escorted the Chironians to the ground car behind, where two younger children and their mother waited. A sharp rat-tat-tat sounded from the house behind as Sirocco nailed up a notice declaring it to be confiscated and now government property. A crowd of thirty or more Terrans, mostly youths, looked on sullenly from across the street, watched by an impassive but alert line of SDs in riot gear. To Leilani, Micky said, "So I guess we're not twelve percenters, after all. We have lots of opinions, and Lechat glanced uneasily in Celia's direction for a moment and then looked back. "Howard Kalens," he said in a lower voice. "Couldn't that have been a final warning? Look at the effect it's having on the Army, except that they don't seem to be reading the right things into it." Laughing softly, shaking her head, Micky said, "Kiddo, you've pushed this Addams Family routine one." Yes, but that situation can't last. If the Army doesn't get them soon, the Chironians will." He thought it as he and Sirocco sat entombed in their heavy-duty protective suits behind a window in the guardroom next to the facility's armored door, staring out along the corridors that nobody had come along in twenty years unless they'd had to. Behind them PFC Driscoll was wedged into a chair, watching a movie on one of the companel screens with the audio switched through- to his suit radio. Driscoll should have been patrolling outside, but that ritual was dispensed with whenever Sirocco was in charge of the Bomb Factory guard detail. A year or so previously, somebody in D Company had taken advantage of the fact that everyone looked the same in heavy-duty suits by feeding a video recording of some dutiful, long forgotten sentry into the closed-circuit TV system that senior officers were in the habit of spying through from time to time, and nobody from the unit had done any patrolling since. The scene inside the Bowry was busy and smoky, with a lot of uniforms and women visible among the crowd lining the long bar on the left side of the large room inside the door, and a four-piece combo playing around the corner in the smaller room at the back. Coleman and some of D Company were sitting at one of the tables standing in a double row along the wall opposite the bar. Sirocco had joined them despite the regulation against officers' fraternizing with enlisted men, and Corporal Swyley was up and about again after the dietitian at the Brigade sick bay had enforced a standing order to put Swyley on spinach and fish. "I need more than a few right now. How much did your Navigator cost?" Noah asked. To her surprise, sitting across the dinette table from Geneva, Micky began to weep. No racking sobs. Stern stared at her unblinkingly. "To save yourself." A couple of minutes went by. Nobody moved. The robot's lights continued to wink at him cheerfully. Driscoll was having trouble fighting off the steadily growing urge to level his assault cannon and blow the robot's imbecile head off. "You shouldn't stray from right here, son. There's all kinds of people in the world, and some you don't. decent, too. Decent like you." "Bluffing, hell." Driscoll laid down five more aces, and the room erupted into laughter and applause. "Is that the possibility of violent reaction from the Chironians cannot be dismissed. Therefore we must allow for such an eventuality in considering the future." For a few seconds Bernard and lay were too stunned to say anything. "But... that's crazy," Bernard protested at last. "You can't just let everybody go round shooting anyone they don't like." There was no repentance or remorse in her eyes when she looked at him. "It's none of your business anymore," she hissed.

"How I choose to have fun is my affair and my life." "Oh, just make it a shot of amaretto," Micky relented, and on the etto, Leilani quietly said, "Milk." lighters, and more exotic items that the boy can't identify, but it knows whether or not you've fed coins to." "I have no idea," Colman said, grinning. Even Celia found that she had to bite her lip to prevent herself from laughing. "So what happened? Did you send them back up?"
